NORTH HIGH SCHOOL
DENVER COLORADO

FOREWORD

IN presenting this Annual, the twenty-second edition of the "Viking," published by the Senior Class of North Denver High School, we have endeavored to embody those hopes, maxims, and ideals which North traditions have cherished in the hearts of all her students.

We have tried to show school life and school activities as they really are, and in this way we place in your hands a book that will forever keep alive those cherished memories of North which are so dear to you.

We wish to thank the student body, the organizations, and the Faculty of this school for the valuable assistance which they have given us in the preparation of this book. This general interest, together with the splendid cooperation of all the members of the Board, has made possible the presentation of this work.

·DEDICATION·

As Aeneas dedicated special days for celebration in honor of his father Anchises, so we dedicate this 1926 edition of our Annual to our alma mater, North Denver High School. During the four years that we have been under her guiding parentage, we have learned, and learned to learn, little lessons that will prove the foundation for our actions and clear-thinking in the world that awaits us. North has grown steadily from a graduating class of one hundred five in the year 1912 to the large and fine class that is recorded in this annual. Many are the students that have come under its influence, and as Aeneas handed down to his followers the task of managing his people, just so have the principals of our school faithfully done their bit and then passed it on to their successors. We feel that with Mr. Borst as our glorious Augustus, North today can well be compared to the imperial city.

In this book, our annual, we have tried to make a comparison between scenes from the Aeneid and our life here at North High. Thus it is that the freshmen are represented by Aeneas's telling Dido of his adventures, signifying the typical freshman that has to have things explained to him; the sophomores, having safely weathered all storms that may have beset them their first year, are safely launched on the second lap of their high sch[illegible]ge, with hopes as high as the blowing sails of the ship as it sails onward.

For the juniors, as the Trojans had to overcome a fe[illegible] in the form of the native Latins before they could occupy their chosen land, [illegible] about to become seniors is overcoming troubles in the form of spring fe[illegible]efore the days of smoothness; and finally, as Aeneas completed his settlement on his promised land after conquering and surviving all the pitfalls, so we seniors are reaping our reward for duties faithfully accomplished.

We, like Aeneas, have done great deeds and added many a "faithful Achates" to our throng of friendships, and so in affectionate appreciation of all that North has meant to us, we again say that this, our annual, is dedicated to our alma mater, North Denver High School.

The Annual Board

IT'S all due to those little white call slips, that float around our home rooms at assembly, that you Vikings have an Annual full of memories. Fifteen students have framed the slips that called them into Mr. Borst's office for the purpose of assigning them to the annual board for '26.

Because of the diphtheria bugs that floated thru the Viking halls, and the processes of getting the course of study entitled "Culture", the annual Board nearly suffered a paralytic stroke thru the loss of Evelyn Beverly, Editress; Philip Peyton, Business Manager; and Philip Salter, Organizations, but they did pull thru and we submit the '26 "Viking" with the hope that it will be kept as a treasure by each individual.

The Aeneid, by Virgil, is the theme chosen for the annual. Through the designs the art editors have shown us how Aeneas starts on his travels to found a new city and race. They have pictured Minerva crowning Apollo with the laurel wreath, signifying knowledge, the gift of our school. As the Freshman drawing shows that Aeneas is telling Queen Dido the story of his experiences, and has only begun his journeys, so the Senior drawing shows the city founded and the task accomplished. The Honor Roll signifies Aeneas distributing the prizes after the contests, contrasting our awards to those worthy students who have stuck to the task they started out to do. The Contents is The Three Fates who control all destiny and so control the contents of our annual. The Gods on Mt. Olympus, who overlook the destiny of all, is the faculty drawing. The athletic section is introduced by the reproduction of a scene of games celebrated at the death of Aeneas' Father. As a climax or finis we see Venus taking Aeneas to Heaven, a place where every Viking wishes to go.

The board feels deeply indebted to Marguerite Hill and Eugene Church for helping with the sales. Also we extend our appreciation to Mr. Semple, of Kistler's, and to Mr. Ware at Lumiere's for their valuable suggestions. To the Art classes and the Art teachers and club sponsors go the hearty thanks of each individual board member for their drawings and suggestions.

Ave Atque Vale

ALL good things must come to an end, it is said. Even as our hero Aeneas had to leave his friend Acestes on the Sicilian shores and set out for lands and seas unexplored, so we seniors are leaving our high school days behind us as we set out for the unknown and uncharted seas of life.

We have had smooth sailing in our Viking ship. With our faculty to guide us as the gods of olden days guided mere mortals, and our past experiences to fall back upon in case of squalls, we have managed to weather all kinds of difficulties in the realms of knowledge; but now we are leaving, and our high school life is coming to its close. It gives us not a little pang that no more shall we have occasion to romp with the scrubs on registration day, not again to attend classes in the dear old "zoo", not again to shine in sophomore world history classes, not again to read in class those weird lines of Macbeth's witches, not again to offer advice to the office or exchange brilliant repartee with our appreciative profs, and think of it—not again to have the joyful task of editing another annual or North Star. We can sympathize rightly with Aeneas, miser homo, as he tore himself from his dear friends and adopted land, for if it tears at our very heartstrings to think of leaving now, what ever shall we do on commencement day?

If we amount to anything in the world we are about to conquer, if we carry on the spirit of prevailing over difficulties as we have learned to do here, if we can do our work in our chosen line well, whether it be as an honest tradesman, an accurate typist, or a useful home maker, we shall feel that it was owing not a little to the training here received, and know that it was worthwhile.

The fall of 1922 marked the historical entrance of an entirely new and unusual group of scrubs with aims as high as our greenness was apparent. We who managed to survive the difficulties of getting acquainted found our ranks swelled the next year by an enterprising group of Junior High pupils. Rival schools forgot their differences and soon became an important indistinguishable addition. The Junior year found the ranks diminished, but recorded a series of events—for the class organized and decided on the class motto and flower and a junior prom. As to this year, well there are so many events that they require this whole book to chronicle them.

As Aeneas had to build his city that lay before him, so we all, especially the seniors, have established in our high school years a firm foundation that shall endure as we breast those unknown seas. And again, as Aeneas had to show for his efforts at last a fine growing city, so we seniors are to have a piece of parchment that we shall treasure in the years to come as those Romans have treasured the legends of Aeneas throughout the ages.

So we say to you, O North, and the loyal "Achates" that we are leaving—

In freta dum fluvii current, dum montibus umbrae
Lustrabunt convexa, polus dum sidera pascet,
Semper honos nomenque tuum laudesque manebunt
Quae me cumque vocant terrae.

THE CLASS OF

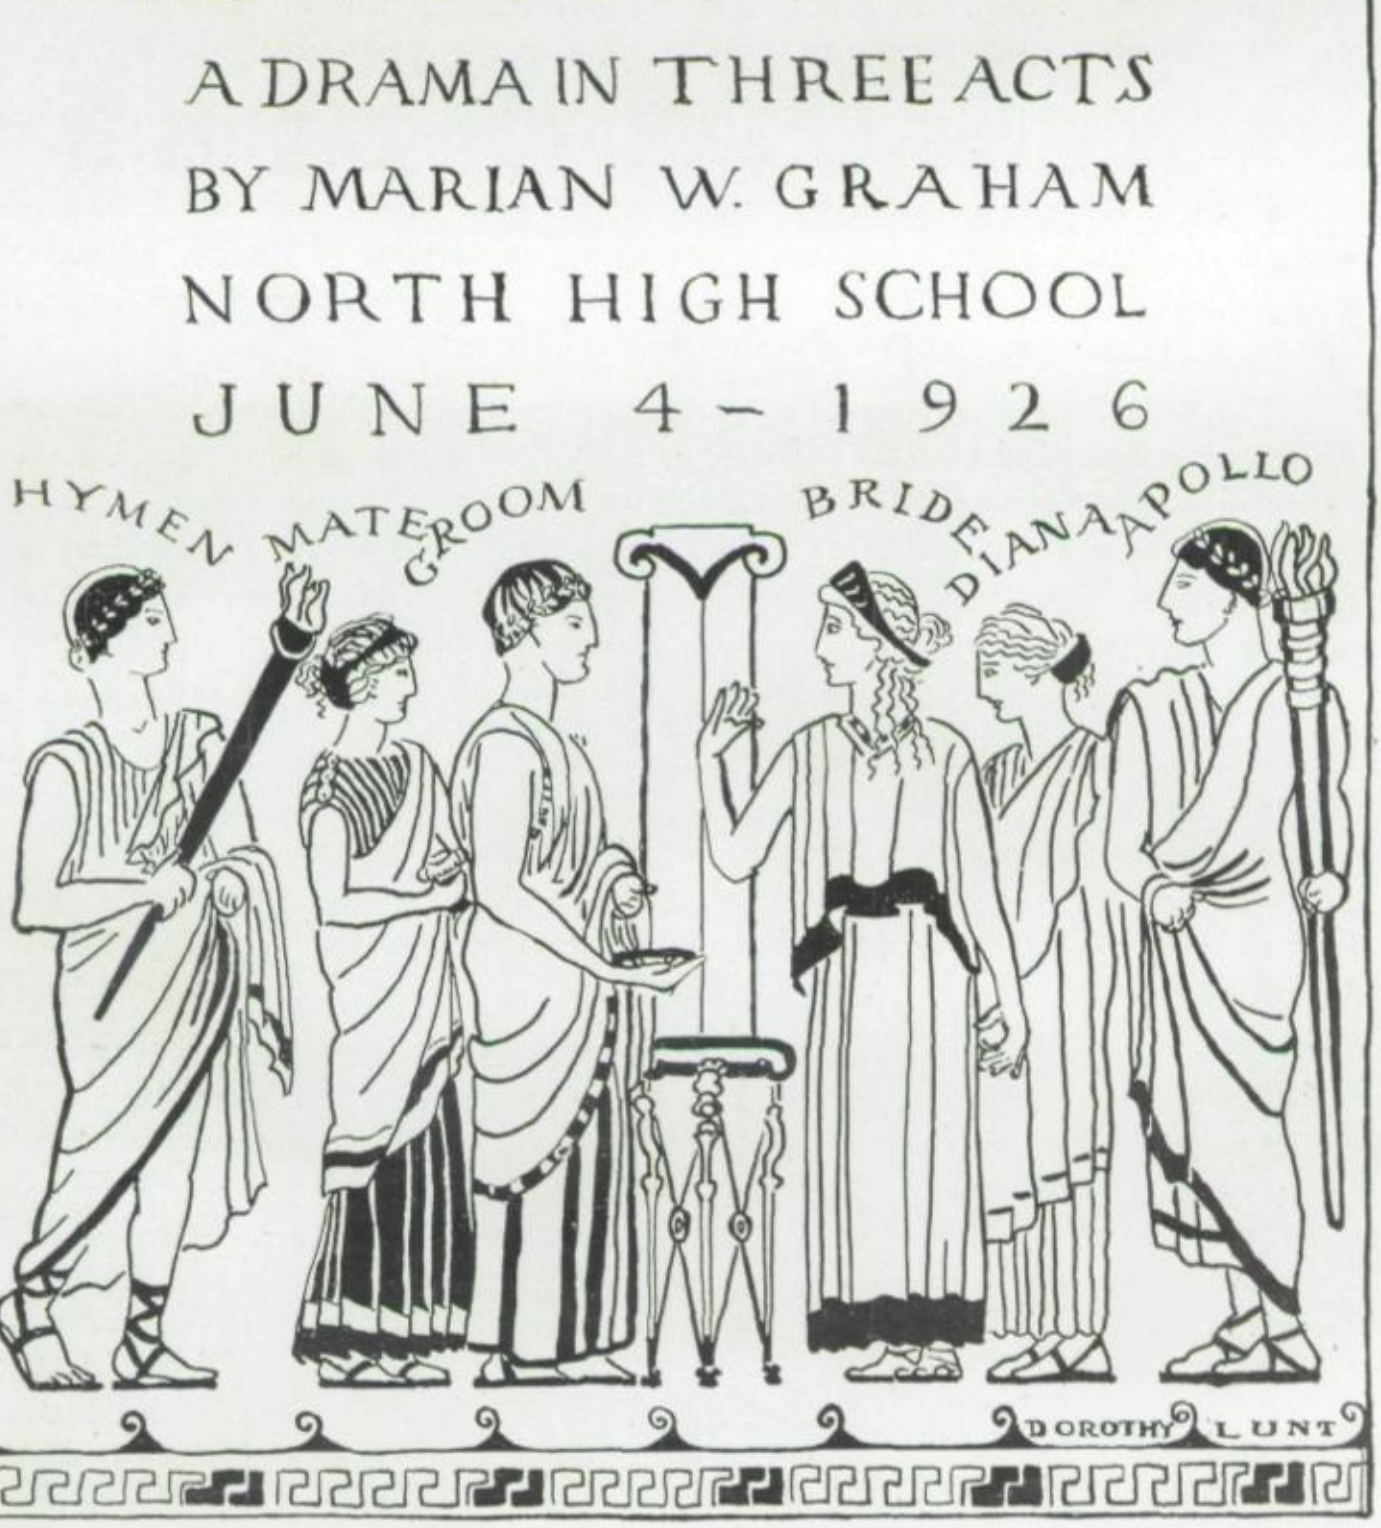
THE VOICE OF ZEUS

A DRAMA IN THREE ACTS

BY MARIAN W. GRAHAM

NORTH HIGH SCHOOL

JUNE 4 - 1926



Class Day

AS in those olden classical days when Aeneas and his companions celebrated culminations of great events by a glorious gala day, so class day has come to mean the climax of our four years' work in high school—four years of toil perhaps; but also of thrills, of heart-throbs, of lessons learned, of friends made, of deeds accomplished.

In harmony with the classical theme, the Class Play chosen for this year was entitled "The Voice of Zeus," by Marion Woodrow Graham. Mrs. Graham originally wrote this play for the class of 1916, and this year marks its third appearance.

Ever since those long ago years, when Caesar, Antony, Brutus, and like heroes roamed the earth, stories of that age have been written. Through them we have come to appreciate the beauty and grace of Greek writing and people. The scenes of our class play were supposed to take place at the time of the famous sculptor, Phidias.

In the first act, the victors return from the Olympia games, and these victories are honored and the safe return of the conquerors is celebrated by music and dancing. The victors tell of meeting with the barbarians, whom they find almost equal with themselves in strength. There is between the two nations a feeling of rivalry and war, and, after the victors have met their barbarian enemies, they remark they do not understand why there should be between them such a feeling of war.

The second scene portrays the wedding festivities of Eurymachus and Cleone. This scene is interrupted by the entrance of soldiers who announce the attack upon the Athenians by the Spartans. Great is the excitement when it is known that it is the Barbarians that have declared war. Cleone calls on Zeus to prevent war, but Zeus indignantly refuses, saying that war is the fault of man. In the last scene, Eurymachus returns unharmed from war and the priests consult the oracles and proclaim that after many terrible wars and much bloodshed, war will disappear from the earth.

CLASS·DAY

Presentation of Memorial

AFTER four years spent in the halls of North, we, the class of 1926, are met here today for the last time. We are leaving behind us many friends, the memory of whom we shall carry with us through life. In the years to come we shall undoubtedly consider the days spent at North as among the happiest in our lives.

It is with regret, however, that we must leave now, but in leaving we wish to express our appreciation, first, to the teachers for their earnest and loyal support, and second, to our school-mates who have come forward and helped us in every need.

Some of us are leaving this building, its faculty and students, to face the world and its trials directly; others will enter institutions of higher learning, there better to prepare for the greater game to come. But, even though our activities are in distant channels, our interests will remain here, and each of us will carry the conviction that however we may conduct our lives we are building on the solid foundation we received at North High.

In order that we may express our gratitude and appreciation, and leave some material evidence of our class to these friends and helpers whom we leave behind, we, the class of 1926, have chosen to offer this memorial to those who stay and those who will be here in years to come.

We leave to the Junior class the opportunity to serve under the purple and gold of the Viking flag, and we are sure that they will prove worthy successors of the class of 1926.

PAUL AMBROSE,
Vice-President Senior Class

Acceptance of Memorial

IN behalf of the Junior Class, and the student body of North High School, I accept this token of appreciation, a memorial of love and gratitude to keep fresh the memory of the class of nineteen hundred twenty-six.

Throughout the past year we have watched the progress of this class toward the goal of every senior—graduation, and we feel assured that they have worthily upheld the standards of North High under the direction of their chosen leaders.

Now a great task remains for us, that of living up to their high ideals of loyalty and devotion to our school. We realize that their achievements have set a higher mark for us to reach, but we are fired by a determination to succeed, and inspired by their noble example, we know that we shall attain that lofty ambition, and, in our turn, lead others to the same proud moment.

We assure the class of nineteen hundred twenty-six that this token of their interest and good will for North High will ever be a reminder of them and the ideals for which they stood.

Again we thank them.

DICK RICHARDS,
President Junior Class

Senior Prom

DO you remember that Senior Prom of '26 we went to on the night of May 1, in our dear old gymnasium? Do you remember the transformation of the place, the wonderful decorations in our class colors of green, white, and silver? Do you remember the lovely, graceful girls, and the beautiful gowns they wore, and the way they and their partners glided around the floor? Do you remember the soft strains of the waltz or peppy fox trot, played by Dave Wright's "Rainbow" orchestra, that met you at the door and fairly made your feet start going, and how you fixed your hair and pulled at your tie, and how proud you felt leading Her down the steps.

Round the floor went the dancers, encoring for more and more and finally drifted out to chat and sample the refreshments of pineapple ice and wafers. From eight till eleven they danced and admired, and at the end of the evening's gaity, the reluctant crowd swung into the halls to exchange the last bit of gossip of the evening.

Oh, without a doubt, it was the greatest prom that North ever has witnessed, and to think that it was held in our own gym! The prom committee, Rachel Finch, Edlyn Smith, Allison Tewksbury, and Adolph Gornick, did their utmost to make the prom a success and we express our appreciation of their work. It all finally ended with "Hasn't it been wonderful", and "Oh, I had the most wonderful time."

Our chaperons for the evening were: Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Borst; Mr. and Mrs. Philip Fitch; Mr. and Mrs. Alywn C. Smith; the officers of the Congress of Parents and Teachers, and the Parents of the members of the prom committee.

Junior Prom

"THE finest event at North this year," was the verdict of all who attended the Junior Promenade on June 5.

For the first time in the history of the school, both Proms were held in the gymnasium, with a hired orchestra, and proved even more successful than those of past years. The gymnasium itself was transformed into a veritable fairyland, and the many-colored gowns of the girls only added more color to the scene. When the last dance had ended, many a regretful look was cast back at the shining floor, as the dancers turned to leave. But prospects for the Juniors of another Prom the following year lessened the regret with which they went.

The Prom Committee, composed of Mary Dekker, Fred Findeisen, Glen Bretschneider, and Dorothy McKee, deserves great credit for the success of the event, as do all those who so willingly helped them.

Probably no event is so popular among the students of the whole school as the Junior Prom, and even those dignified Seniors who attended were pleased to admit that those three short hours were well spent. And many a carefree Junior vowed as he left the gymnasium that the following year he would do all in his power to promote a Senior Prom as successful.

Junior Class

LOOKING back on the years spent at North, we, the class of twenty-seven, feel proud of our school and the advantages she has afforded us.

Entering North as freshmen or sophomore, we found the task awaiting us of living up to the ideals and standards set by the preceding classes, and we realized that only by cooperation and loyalty to our leaders could we accomplish this task.

Upon becoming Juniors we accordingly elected our first student officers and felt well satisfied with our choice. Dick Richards was elected president with Charles Hooker as vice-president, Gerald Davis as secretary, and LaMarr Waddell as treasurer. Roy Byers was elected alternate for president.

At the first meeting on March third, the officers were inaugurated, the dues decided upon, and the class urged to support the school annual.

It is very evident that the annual Junior Prom will be a great success this year. The committee appointed is showing great enthusiasm and is promising a bigger and better Prom than ever before.

We are proud of our record, but we intend to surpass it in the future and to further the work done so well by our predecessors, the seniors. Our interests are centered on that goal of every student—graduation; and because of this, we intend to keep ever before us the true characteristics of every loyal Viking; those of citizenship, scholarship, and, above all, honor to our friends, our school, and to humanity. Good-by and good luck, Seniors.

The Viking

AS one reflects on the outcome of North's athletics of the past year, one cannot but feel that something even greater than the glory from the championships won is his, because the thing that realy counts is not what one wins or loses, but how one plays the game. Glory and defeat are soon forgotten, but the real lesson which athletics teaches us is the desire for clean, earnest competition and the resolution to "fight until the whistle has blown" as Coach Thomas has entreated his football squads to do.

Coach Utterback and assistant coach Don DesCombs piloted North to victory in the Denver-Boulder Athletic league with a four and a half point lead over East, our most dangerous rival. It is with regret that the student body heard of the resignation of Coach Utterback; however, we shall always know Carl Utterback affectionately as "Coach". When a school has had the misfortune to lose the coach who has been willing to put everything he has into the job of turning out good teams, then that school is indeed fortunate if it can find another man as willing to sacrifice his own time and who has the personality and energy to put out other good teams as Don DesCombs will do and is doing.

Each year for the past three seasons, a baseball team has gone out to the diamond and from the first instant of play has inspired the spectators with confidence that is quite satisfactory to note. That team is just another of Coach Thomas's Viking "precision" nines which Denver each year turns out to see in action; and she is seldom disappointed in the clock-work accuracy of the team.

North grid and cage teams this season didn't do very satisfactorily from the standpoint of the places for the championship title, but Coach Thomas is looking for something higher than a championship; when his men go on to higher institutions of learning, almost without exception these men win places of honor on athletic field, mythical team and scholarship, yet Coach Thomas is working for something even higher than any of these for his men. Have you ever seen any of the clean cut, square jowled, bright eyed, healthy men that come back several times each year? If so, then you will understand when I say, "Coach Thornton Thomas is working to turn out men who will be a power in the line of work each chooses to follow through life." His men are leaders, and Coach Thomas has developed their leadership abilities, and when the world needs a dependable man for some assignment, it will look to men of the type of Coach Thomas's Vikings in the hour of need.

Boxing, swimming, and wrestling were recognized as minor sports by the athletic association and as much interest may be taken in them as in some of the major sports. Participants in these sports are eligible to receive letters.

An incident showing the high type of fellow now participating in athletics is illustrated by the remark made by one of the strictest teachers in the school when she said, "I don't believe I have had to refuse to sign a single athletic sign-up slip, and I am highly pleased with the high type of student now participating in athletics."

Football, 1925

FOOTBALL prospects looked bright early in September when Coach Thomas issued the call for candidates on registration day. The regulars from the year before who turned out were Captain Benny Martin, Graves, Renken, Tripp, Lieberman, Tewksbury, Lavoie, Byers, and Richards.

Our prospects seemed bright in our pre-season games; however, our spirits were somewhat dampened in our first conference game when we met defeat at the hands of the Cowboys of West with a score of ten to nothing. It was during this game that our captain, Benny Martin, was severely injured. The Vikings are fighters, and came back strong in the next game when we defeated Manual seven to nothing in the biggest upset of the season, for Manual had won her first game from the powerful East team and was therefore considered a dangerous opponent.

On a Monday afternoon late in October, after a bad storm, the Vikings met the Rebels of South on a slow field and were defeated twenty to seven. Boulder Preps had the good fortune to defeat us thirteen to seven in our next game which we should never have lost. Then East followed suit when they commandeered our old jinx and rode to victory with a decisive forty-eight to seven score over the purple and gold.

Phil Tripp, our center, was the only man on the team to be chosen on the All-city mythical eleven; however, we had several on the All-city second team.

Those who received letters are Captain Benny Martin, Captain-elect Byers, Richards, Siegel, Graves, Lavoie, Barrie, Tripp, Cook, Molien, Lieberman, Gibson, Silverman, Wilson, Lomer, Renken, Rosenbaum, and Manager Ronald Martin.

Although the season was an extremely disappointing one to us in view of the few conference games won, our men learned a lesson that will be carried with them to the ends of the earth; our chief trouble was that we had a "first half" team, a team which fell down on the job in the second half; the men weren't aggressive, but in the occasional display of real fight and real team work there was a certain grim satisfaction felt in the way Coach Thomas's clever plays succeeded in completely disorganizing the defensive play of his opponents. A coach representing one of our bitterest rivals expressed the feeling of the student bodies when he said, "I admire North very much because, regardless of whether she wins or looses, she always plays a mighty clean game." One may truly say, "there is glory even in defeat."

Byers, Richards, Gibson, Lomer, Cook, and Wilson are probably the only letter men who will be back next fall, but with their proved abilities, and the desire to play the game squarely, and with loyal support from the student body, North may look forward to a great athletic season.

Our Coach is an able one, and with the added encouragement that Don DesCombs, all-state star quarterback of Missouri, is going to help us, all we need is the necessary material which must needs come from the lower classes, and the fire to be aggressive, and every Viking has that.

Basketball, 1926

VERY soon after football season had closed, the call for basketball candidates was issued, and Coach Thomas was rewarded by the appearance of seventy-five serious-minded fellows who started into light training at once. Those veterans who turned out were Captain McLeod, Martin, Graves, Walters, Richards, Thomas, and Byers.

In the first league game of the season when the Vikings met Manual on the Bricklayer's own floor and failed in an eighteen to twelve score to defeat them, we offered no excuses but prepared for the time when we should meet them again.

In our second game which was with South, the Viking ringers left the floor after a fast tilt and a shower of accurately placed shots and carried the Purple and Gold to victory with a score of twenty-nine to twenty-two.

East defeated us in the third game with the decisive score of twenty-eight to fourteen after having been held to a four-four score through the first half; the Angels came back for a swift running attack that bewildered the Vikings and literally swept them off their feet.

Boulder Preps came back in the last twenty minutes of our next game, and, after a bitter struggle, a sixteen to fifteen victory over the Vikings was registered on the score board.

West experienced the inevitable Viking comeback when we defeated those Cowboys eighteen to ten in an earnstly fought tilt on the next Saturday.

In the second round of the League, North tasted "sweet revenge" when the Vikings floored the Manual Bricklayers to the tune of twenty-five to fifteen.

East after being held scoreless in the first quarter and to a tie at the end of the half, came back again in the second half with a strong defensive and offensive and built up a score of twenty-one to seventeen in a hard game.

South repeated the old story again when they retaliated in the second half of our next game and gave the Rebel rooters a real thrill when the pistol cracked to announce a twenty-two to twenty victory over North.

North Vikings appeared in the headlines of sporting pages the next week when they beat the Preps for the first time that any school had handed them a defeat on their own floor in three years. The score was ten to seven.

West Cowboys defeated the Vikings in the last clash of the season when we failed to show the same ordinary speed and accuracy and pep; however, the game was close and the final score stood fifteen to eleven at the end of the second half.

The letter men are Captain McLeod, Martin, Gaglia, Gibson, Garver, Thomas, Graves, Walters, Rosenbaum, Ambrose, Owen, Richards, Byers, and Mgr. Pianfetti.

Those who will probably be back again next year are Gaglia, Gibson, Garver, Thomas, Richards, and Byers, and if we are reasonably careful with such material, we are sure of a winning team.

North only placed third this year; but it was a fine season for us because our men played some fine clean games.

Track, 1925

NORTH for the second successive time in two years captured the championship of the Denver-Boulder Athletic League. The meet was close, North winning over its closest contestant, East, by a four and a half point lead, scoring fifty-eight and two-thirds points.

After showing up exceedingly well in various pre-season meets, thanks to the efforts of Coach Utterback, Asst. Coach Don DesCombs, and Eugene Church, track manager, the Viking track team was in the prime of condition for the local meet.

In the all-city track meet, North garnered five first places and seven second places. Two records were broken and made by North men when Dick Richards hurled the javelin one hundred and forty-eight feet and one inch, an increase of well over ten feet, while Gil Johnson pole vaulted ten feet and seven inches.

In the State High School Annual Track Meet held at Boulder in early May, in spite of one of the most disagreeable days on the calendar, Coyle Hillyard was one of the outstanding athletes there, breaking the four hundred and forty yard record, while Helbig captured a third place. It will be remembered, however, that Langford of Fort Collins made a new National High School record when he shattered his previous record and threw the javelin one hundred seventy-six feet and eight inches.

The close of the season was a sad one for track followers of North when Coach Utterback resigned his coaching duties after a long successful period at North. The hopes of the fans were bolstered, however, when it was announced that Mr. DesCombs would assume the duties of track coach. Mr. DesCombs has had considerable track experience, both in high school and college, and we feel that as high a grade of team as in the past will continue to be as successful as before.

The men who made letters last year are as follows: Captain Helbig, Miller, Johnson, Strang, Barrows, Weselquist, Jackson, Hillyard, Mills, Rhader, Captain-elect Davis, McLeod, Lieberman, Findeisen, Richards, Pringle, Barrie, and Manager Church. The first ten of these mentioned graduated, but things are looking mighty bright for those remaining.

When the call was issued for track men this season, much promising material responded. Although inclement weather early in the practice season held up training, the team has been steadily progressing.

As this annual goes to press, no track meets have been held, but track fans may rest assured that the team will make a good showing, having two consecutive championships as incentive.

In summing up North's track seasons in the past, one might say that our success depends on the way in which the student body accepts this form of sport. Track may be said to be a sport which depends entirely on individuality and not team work as a whole. The athlete competing has one chance to make his letter and no more. Therefore, it may be seen why this form of sports is so popular with the true Vikings of North, who, like their ancestors, loved a display of individual skill.

Baseball, 1925

WITH the first balmy days of Spring in 1925 came Coach Thomas's call for diamond aspirants, and many celebrities of last year's team, together with a promising squad of green material, were tossing the old apple round. Among those luminaries from the last year's team were Captain LaGuardia, Barrows, Karns, Lucci, Ferguson, Dietemen, and Stevens. The student body felt from the start that Coach Thomas would have material for a championship team; enthusiasm reigned supreme.

In our first conference game when we played Boulder and defeated them eleven to five, the other teams sat up and began to take notice, for North had upset the dope bucket.

West fell before our heavy slugging the next week and left the field with the weaker end of a six to three score.

South was in line for execution on the next Saturday, and Karns and Lucci forced a bewildered Rebel team to leave the field at the end of the nine innings with the score in favor of the Vikings, thirteen to three.

East determined to show North that by the law of averages we couldn't win forever, and at the end of one of our best games proved this to us with a neat score of eight to two to their credit.

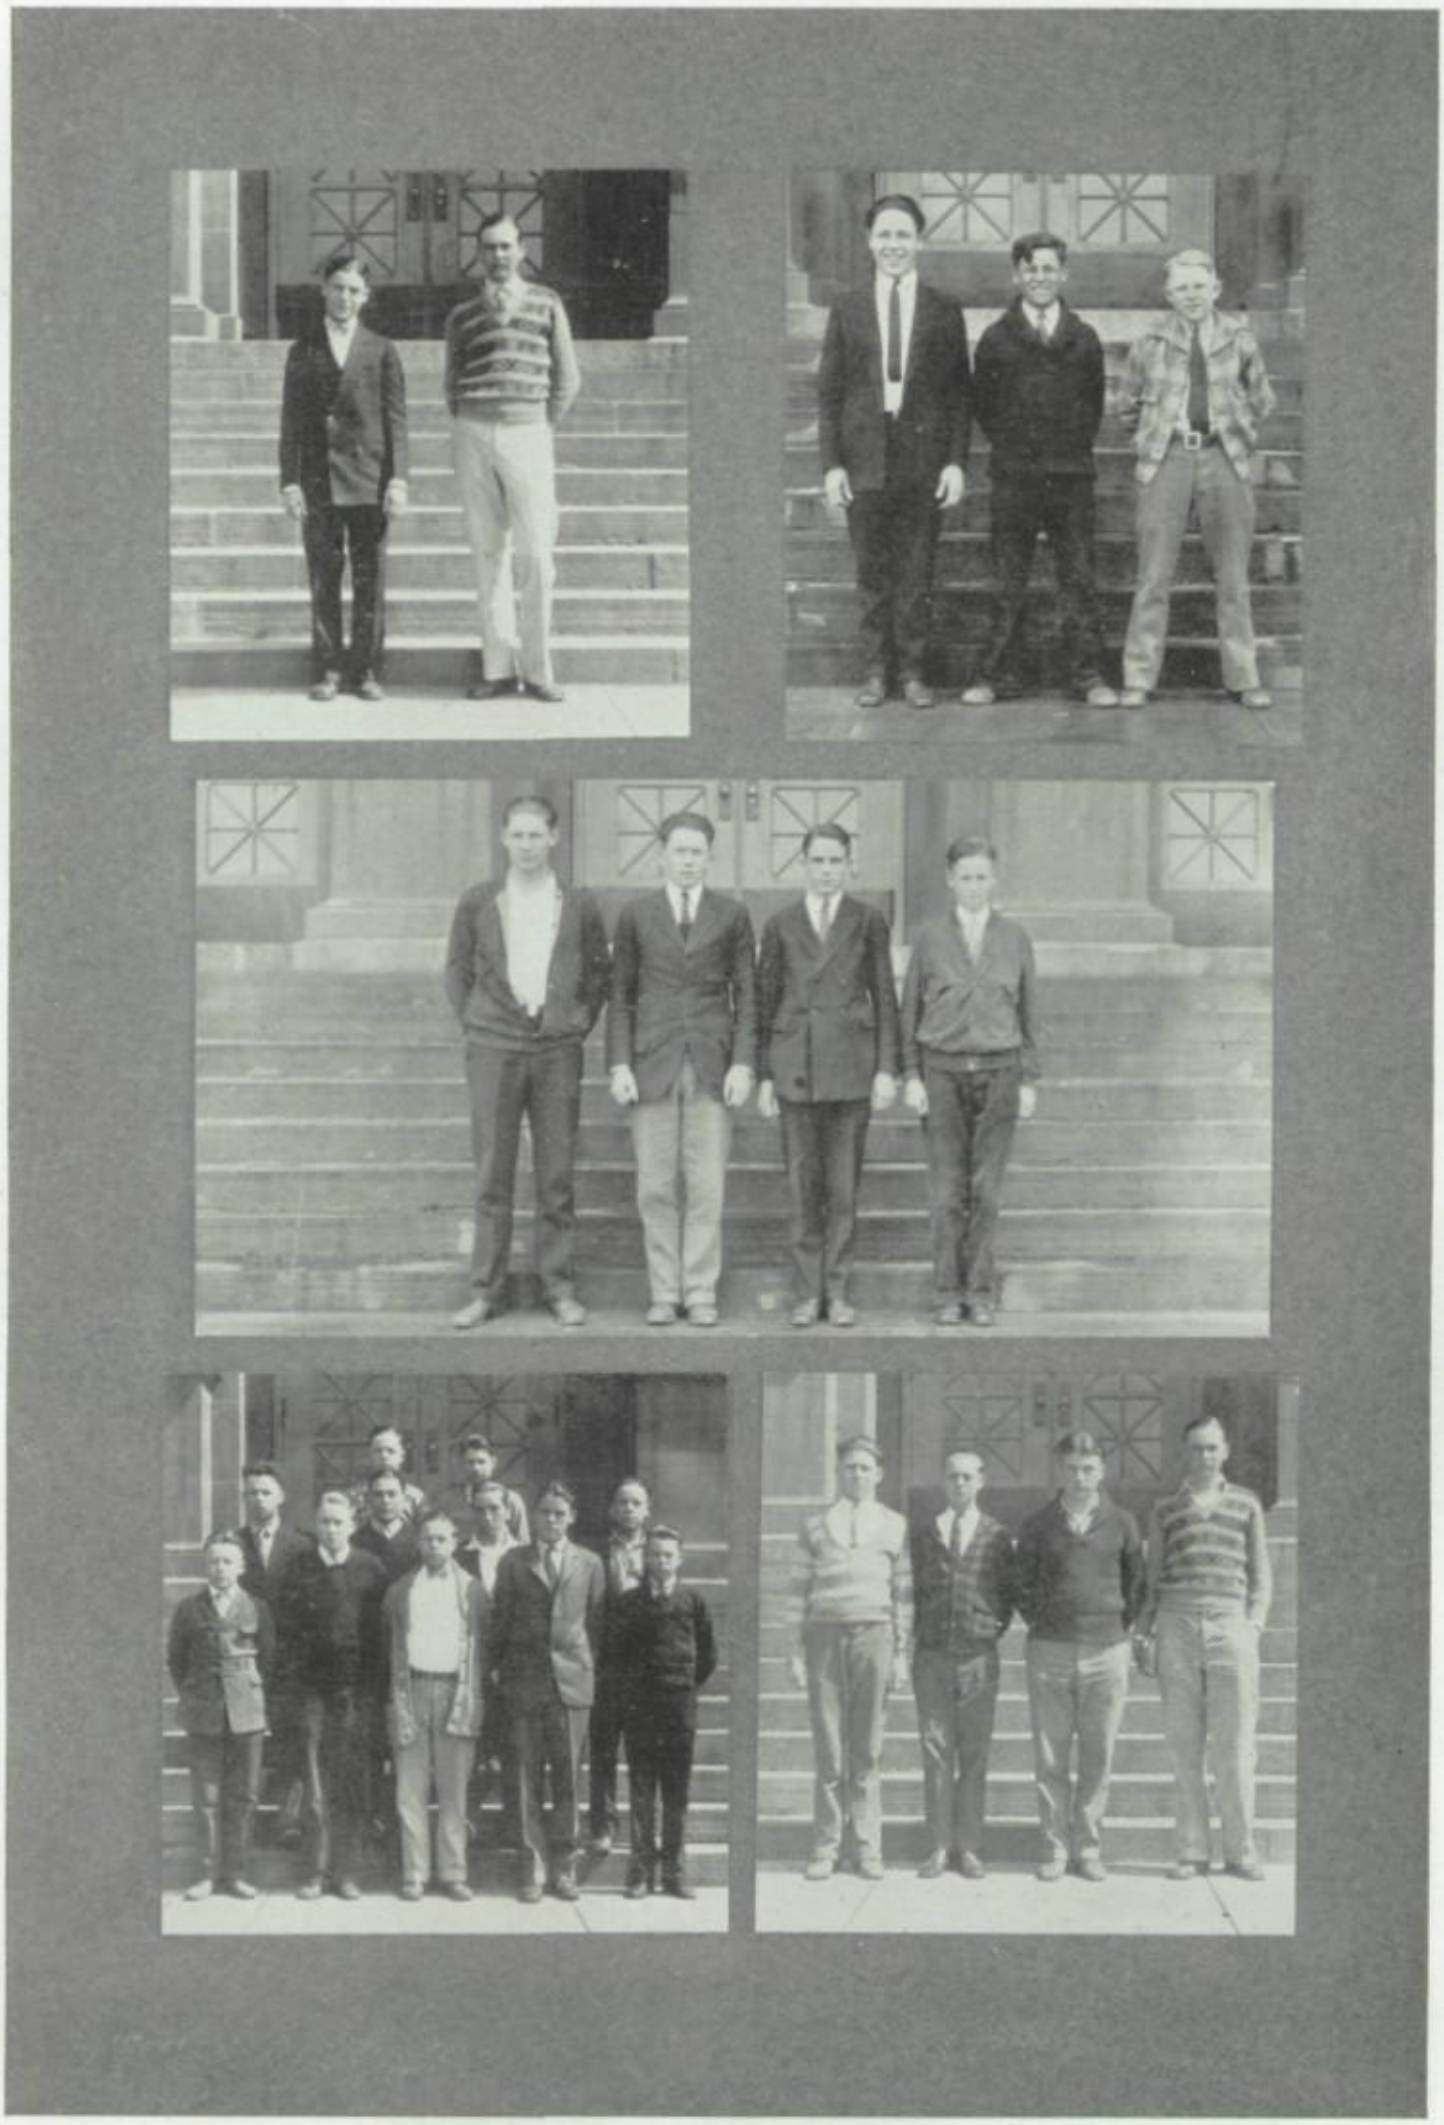
North came back grimly determined the next week to show the team which had beat East what a real team can do, and the Vikings beat the Manual Bricklayers seven to nothing in an excellent game.

South, thinking the gods had ruled against them, came back strongly in the finals to try their skill again, but the Vikings had decided to win and again South left the field with the smaller end of a six to five score.

In our last game when Manual met us, it was very plain that if the Bricklayers didn't get our blood, they wouldn't be satisfied, and so Manual continued at a furious pace for a few minutes, but Manual's steam evaporated and North's determination lived on. North played an almost perfect game, sending a number of Manual pitchers to the showers with a deluge of hits, and, when the game had ended, North for the second time had beat Manual—this time, however, with a score of seventeen to five.

This has been a satisfactory year for North, for having won the baseball championship twice in three years, and with Karns and Lucci back in the box again with Trembly, Walters, and other warriors on hand, North's hopes are bright again this year; and, with our past victories as a standard, we can never be content with a second place. We have tasted victory too often, even as we have tasted defeat, to let a championship slide through our fingers without a hard fight contested in clean play.

As this book goes to press North's hopes are truly bright. Having won a number of practice games from worthy opponents already this spring and with the promise of a whole hearted interest from the student body, the team may well feel encouraged.



Tennis, 1925

THE annual tennis tournament was held in September to choose representatives for the singles and doubles in the Denver-Boulder League. Dave Rudd came through with flying colors in the singles after defeating East's representative in three briliant sets, six-two, six-four, and seven-five. In the final doubles, North was represented by Dave Rudd and Tom Mosgrove. After a close match, the Vikings were defeated by East, six-two, four six, five-seven, six-four, and nine-eleven.

Wrestling 1926

THE skill of our grapplers stood them in good stead when Coach DesCombs called for candidates. Blunt, Brown, and Richtel were the only three who made points, but these as well as their manager, "Rusty" Henderson, are to be congratulated on the way they handled things. Those who were awarded letters are Blunt, Brown, Richtel, Hillman, Green, Pferdestellar, Plahte, and Henderson.

Boxing 1926

THE week and a half notice to our boxing candidates was hardly sufficient to prepare for a vigorous tourney; however, North won the championship by scoring five knock-outs, Karns and Dometrovitch each making two and Wilkerson one. It is interesting to note that Karns succeeded in flooring his two opponents in less than a minute and a quarter. Those who received letters are Karns, Dometrovitch, Wilkerson, Gornick, Bailey, Rudd, Erskine, and Tolve. Next year when our men have had more time in which to train, Coach Don will turn out a powerful team.

Swimming 1296

NORTH participated in the swimming finals at Morey Junior High, and, although North's team was conceded to be the strongest in the League because of the difficulties Coach Don encountered in training his team, North was unable to cope with the better trained Angel team.

North won three second places. Malm, swimming with a clean, strong stroke, captured two, with Scearce as winner of the third second; North also won four third places. North tied with South for third place, with East as the champion and West holding second place. Those who received letters in swimming were Malm, Scearce, Evans, Brandi, Gosnell, and Keuhler.

These minor sports have been intensely interesting, their possibilities have been shown, and it is hoped that more fellows will practice this summer and will be ready to turn out next spring when the call comes, for it was proved in wrestling and boxing as well as in swimming that experience counts most.

Girls' Athletic Society

THE Girls' Athletic Society of North High School believes in the spirit of play for its own sake, and works for the promotion of physical activity for the largest possible proportion of girls in any given group under leadership and conditions that foster health and develop citizenship.

To become a member, a girl must have three-hundred fifty points and must come out for at least one sport a season. The club now has nineteen members. President, Dorthy Lunt; Vice-President, Nora Woods; Secretary, Margaret Givens; Treasurer, Rachel Finch; Sergeant-at-arms, Edwina Nichols; members: Bernice Amsden, Jean Beers, Dorothy McKee, Tannis True, Nadine Williams, Helen Wheeler, Sara Devine, Frances Dougherty, Maida Peyton, Betty Davis, Helen Cullen, Marjorie Gosnell, Nan Starr, Dorothy Hilliard, and Alice Schrepferman.

A nutrition class has been organized for girls seven per-cent or more under normal weight. A mid-morning lunch is served and rest periods given every day. The girls of G. A. S. have sponsored this class.

At the sixth annual conference of the Colorado League of High School Girls Athletic associations held at Boulder, April 6 and 7, seven girls from North's athletic club were elected to go. This is one of the outstanding dates for the club and being able to go is a great honor.

Altogether, the year 1926 has been an extra good year, and many new and successful activities have made it an interesting one for the girls.

VOLLEY BALL

ONE hundred and fifty-six girls made points in volley ball this year. A tournament was held which aroused interest from the freshman girl to the senior. Each gym class chose a team, and girls who were not enrolled in a gym class formed a team of their own and entered the tournament. The G. A. S. had a very wonderful team from their standpoint for they won the tournament.

Sixteen games were played and volley ball became the most popular game of the season. The teams and their captains were as follows: Cerise, Helen Robertson; White, Jessie Barone; Jade, Berrie Blend; Black, Tannis True; Violet, Mary Sanzone; Brown, Jean Beers; Gold, Frances Dougherty; Silver, Fay Kantlowitz; Purple, Maida Peyton, and G. A. S., Bernice Amsden.

SWIMMING

THE second most prominent sport for the club, proved to be swimming. Each Monday after school, the club members met at Skinner Junior High and enjoyed an hour of instruction and frolic. Marjorie Gosnell, Bernice Amsden, Jean Beers, Helen Cullen, Dorothy McKee, were the best "fishes."

BASKETBALL

OVER one hundred and sixty girls signed up for basketball this year, with Miss Opal Lintz as coach. The gymnasium classes and the Girls Athletic teams held a rainbow tournament, after which it was planned to pick four school teams; a freshman, sophomore, junior, and senior team. The Girls' Athletic Society had two teams; Purple and Gold, with Bernice Amsden as captain of the Purple, and Tannis True, captain of the Gold.

INDOOR AND TRACK

AS the Annual went to press before indoor was well organized, not much can be said of this sport. We do know, however, that one hundred and forty-five girls signed up for the game, making it evident that indoor is to be popular this season. The Girls' Athletic Society will have their teams, and compete with others.

All the Sports Clubs of the Denver High Schools held a track meet. This was the first time that the Girls have ever held any sport together, and although there was no competition, the records in the various events were compared.

Each member of the Girls' Athletic Society has registered in the gymnasium classes and interested the younger girls in coming out for athletics. They have tried to recognize the Game as it is, and play it for the love of playing. This viewpoint has helped to make better sports-women of the members of the Girls Athletic Society.

National Honor Society

THROUGHOUT the ages, the man who has ruled vast dominions or swayed the minds of multitudes has been one who possessed wisdom. In order that wisdom might become a thing to be honored and desired by high school students, the National Honor Society was formed. Its purpose is to further good scholarship, by which wisdom is attained.

For real achievement, qualities other than scholarship are necessary. That the National Honor Society might stand for all that led to achievement and the essentials for a successful and happy life, three other requirements for membership were chosen: leadership, service, and character.

Thus came into being the National Honor Society and its emblem, which consists of the keystone bearing the letters S, L, C, and S, standing for the four cardinal purposes of the society; Scholarship, Leadership, Service, and Character, and the flaming torch, symbolizing the purpose to bear forward the searching light of truth, to keep burning in the school a high ambition for the enduring values of life.

Students eligible to election to this society must stand in the first fourth of their respective classes. Not more than fifteen percent of any 12A class may be elected to membership in each Chapter. The election of not more than five per cent of the 11A class may take place during the last month of the sixth semester.

It was not the intention of those who framed the constitution to say that all of the qualities are necessary in each individual, but that the individual who ranks in the upper fourth in scholarship and who, in addition, possesses the other three qualities in largest measure should receive first consideration in the election.

Every year, one ceremony for the reception of new members is given by the North High Chapter. Before the induction of the new members, Mr. Borst, the principal, addresses the society, emphasizing the place of honor held by the Chapter in the school. The president of the Chapter then explains the purposes of the organization as set forth in the constitution. Another member explains the symbolism of the emblem, using a large replica of the pin carved in wood.

The members form a hollow square or keystone with the president in the center. The president holds the torch aloft and the others extend their right hands as if holding a torch. The new members repeat after the president the following pledge: "I pledge myself to uphold the high purposes of this society to which I have been elected, striving in every way, by word and deed, to make its ideals the ideals of my school."

THE largest club in North is that of the Senior Literary Society which is composed entirely of students who expect to graduate in June. It has been the custom of this society to have semi-monthly meetings, at which the program is furnished by senior talent. A one act play is usually given together with readings and music.

The evening performance this year was a three act play given on March 26, "The Charm School", the story of which deals with the adventures of Austin Bevans, a young automobile salesman, who, upon inheriting a girls' boarding school from a maiden aunt, insists on running it according to his own ideas, the chief of which is that the dominant feature in a girl's education should be charm. In the end Bevans has to give up the school because of an agreement he made with Homer Johns, the mortgage holder. The chief characters in the play were taken by Leavitt Tuder, Frances Wolfe, Eugene Church, Dorothy Lunt, William Scheff, Shirley McConnell, Gordon Leonard, Frances Bertoluza, Gomer James, Mildred Nahring, Donald Burns, Elsie Blue, Marion Gilmore, Dorothy Zinick, Yetta Zarit, and Margaret Dwelle.

THIS marks the close of the sixth successful year of the Latin Club, an organization which has proved that Latin, though considered dead, is a live and popular language at North.

The meetings were all interesting and instructive. Among the most entertaining was the initiation of the new members by conducting them through the lower world and finally to the Elysian Fields. Another time the club was fortunate in procuring as speaker, Mr. George W. Eggers, of the Denver Art Museum. At the open meeting, the members presented "Pyramus and Thisbe" in the Latin tongue. This was translated by a former student of North.

The Latin Club is proud to number among its popular "Virgilians" Margaret Overbeck, who has adopted for the Club the banner pictured above from her prize winning flag design.

The Spanish Club

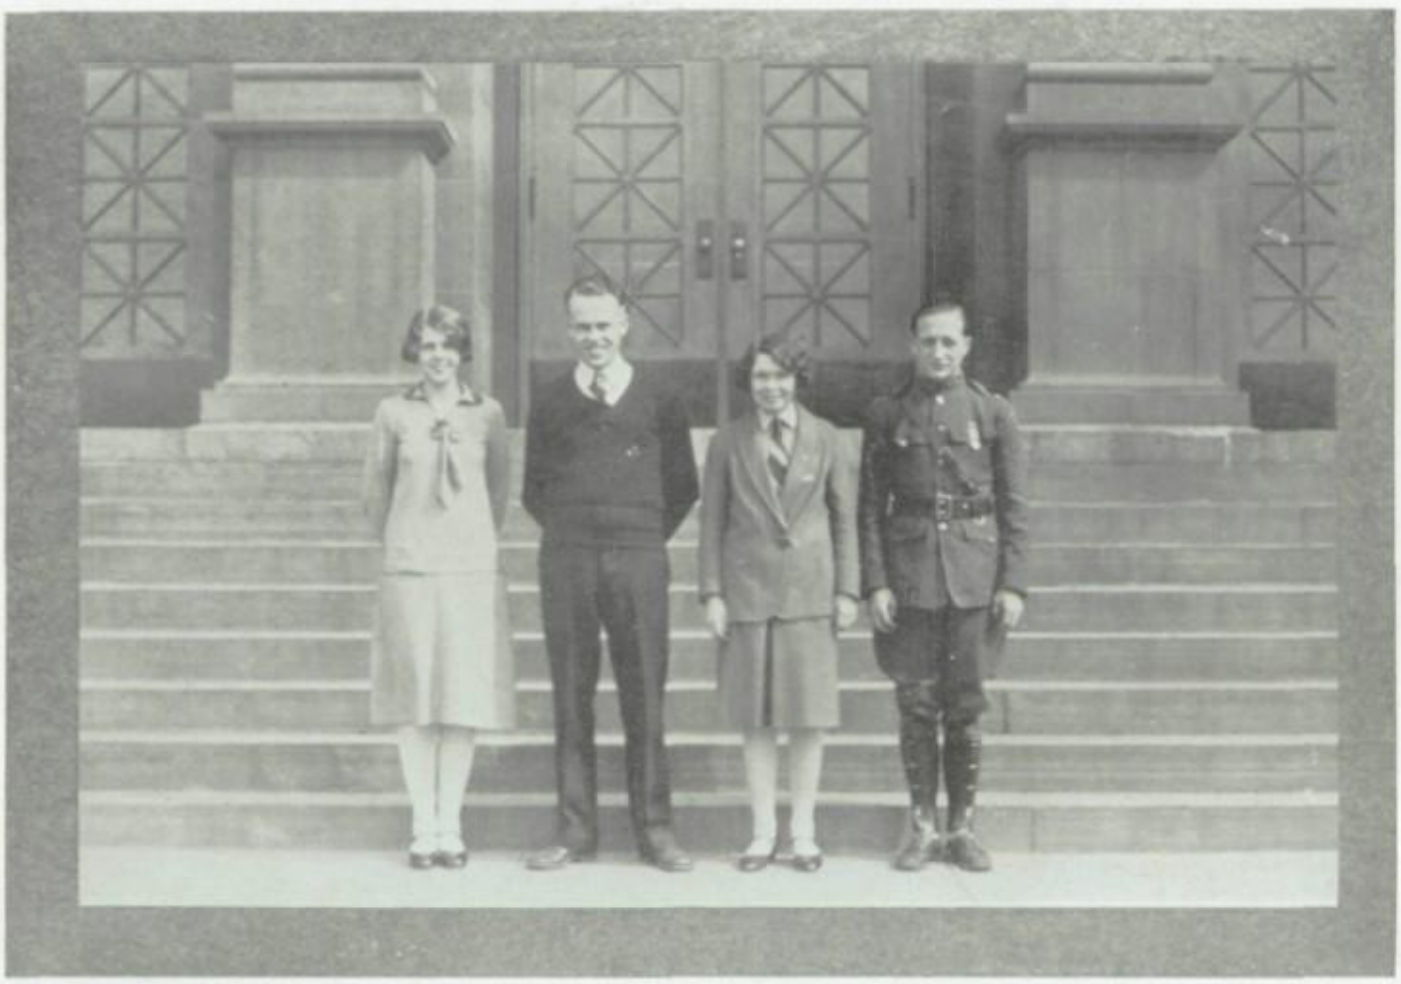
THE Spanish Club, or "La Sociedad Espanola", is one of the largest and most prominent clubs at North. There are two divisions: the Leon division for beginners, and the Castilian for the more advanced pupils. The officers for the year 1925-26 were: President, Fred Findeisen; Vice-president, Roy Byers; second Vice-president, Kane Tully; secretary, Katherine Schmitt; assistant secretary, Brooks Thomas; treasurer, Helen Peters.

Last year saw the inauguration of the Spanish Honor Society, Joe Lohman being president of this division for the year. To be eligible to this club one must have an average of not less than a B in Spanish.

The object of the Club is to create interest in the Spanish language and in the Spanish speaking countries of the world. The programs consisted of dances, songs, talks, readings, and recitations, and accounts of the lives of prominent and famous Spaniards.

The social event of the year was the annual Spanish Fiesta, which was looked forward to with much expectation, because of the successful Fiesta last year. The program consisted of a march by a boy and girl from each Spanish class, dressed to represent some Spanish speaking country. Prizes were given for the best costumed couple. There were Spanish songs, and dances following the march.

The faculty advisor of the club, officers, and those who have helped in arranging programs deserve much thanks for starting the club toward a successful year.



The French Club

THE French Club was founded during the war for the purpose of aiding war orphans, and since the war, the club has carried on its work by helping destitute families in the city. Last Christmas, they contributed to the poor and gave boxes to the men of Fitzsimons Hospital. The club next year hopes to engage in some definite and worthy charity, preferably something that will benefit children.

It has been customary for the French club to give two plays, one in French and one in English, but this year a French club social was given after school in the gymnasium. The girls of the dancing classes gave a delightful entertainment and refreshments were served. Next year they hope to have one or two open meetings to which the parents will be invited.

This year the club was particularly interested in modern French literature and art. Copies of "L'Illustration" and a French journal belonging to Miss Dupree, posters and post cards, sent by former pupils of the French department from Paris, furnished helpful material along these lines.

A small silver shield, with the initials F. C. on it, is the description of the new club pin which was chosen this year.

THE Maxwell History Club began the year's activities with its new interests and has progressed very rapidly. The annual entertainment was in the form of a tea dance in North's gymnasium.

The History club has sponsored many interesting programs during the last year. The entire student body was present at the meeting on April 15, when North was presented with a beautiful American Flag by the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War. The Denver Veteran's Fife and Drum corps played several Civil War selections and Mrs. Julia Hockett sang. Mrs. Chase presented "Old Glory" and George B. Steuart, Captain of Cadets, accepted it in behalf of the school.

The speakers on the program were Secretary of State, Carl S. Milliken, W. C. Borst, Eugene Church, who presented the school flag in behalf of the North Star Staff, and Paul Ambrose, Vice-President of the Senior class, who accepted in behalf of the school. The school flag was designed by Margaret Overbeck.

FOUR years ago the Art Club was but the crude block of marble which was to be chiselled and hewn through the successive years. Each year a few touches have been added. This year's strokes have been some of the most important.

The aims of the Art Club are to widen the horizon of art for its members and to impart pleasure to the study of Art through varied, interesting programs. At its bi-monthly meetings, it has endeavored to obtain persons of note as its speakers. This year the speakers have been Mr. G. W. Eggers of the Denver Art Museum; Mrs. Dieman, prominent sculptress; Mr. Borst; Miss Lucia Patton, Commercial Artist; and Mr. Wayne Soverns, North graduate of '24, now an architect. In addition, the club members have presented three original programs.

On November 13, 1925, the club held its annual party, to which each member brought a guest. A puppet play and a Punch and Judy Show, followed by dancing, comprised the entertainment.

Junior Junto

ONE of the most active and prominent organizations at North is the Junior Junto, founded four years ago for the purpose of developing the latent literary ability of the school. The club is composed of sophomores and juniors who have an average of "B" in English.

The annual essay, poem, and short story contests have been unusually successful in giving all contestants an opportunity to reveal their concealed ability.

The programs of the year have been the results of the efforts of the members themselves, and all types of literary work have been taken up.

The club's activity for the year culminated in the presentation of Booth Tarkington's play, "Beauty and the Jacobin." Preceding the presentation, the prizes for the essay, poem, and short story contests were awarded.

The officers for 1925-6 are: Philippine Anderson, president; Ronald Brodie, secretary; Tannis True, treasurer; Ronald Preston, sergeant-at-arms.

The members for 1925-6 are: Joe Ackerman, Philippine Anderson, Dorothea Baird, Marguerite Becker, Evelyne Bernstone, Ronald Brodie, Ruth Clark, Dorothy Conroe, Robert Charbonnell, Herbert Ellis, Elaine Goodstein, Carol Jones, Nadian Kasper, Lotus Keller, Michael Lesko, Shirley McConnell, Frances McGintie, Fred Moore, Myrtle Miller, Lila Nieman, Clare Parker, Myrle Perry, Ronald Preston, Floyd Ray, Gladys Reno, Marie Spallone, Lucille Stapp, Earl Strickland, Grace Stone, Brooks Thomas, Tannis True, Calvin Vos, Dora Yoelin.

THE Scientific Society has just completed a most successful and enthusiastic year. The membership, which was composed of pupils who were interested in science, was larger than that of any of the preceding twelve years.

Mr. Wm. C. Twieg, sponsor, arranged many educational and interesting bi-monthly programs, which proved to be of a distinct scientific value to all who heard them. They consisted of well prepared talks given by members of the society and lectures and experiments given by various members of the faculty.

Arthur Vos Jr. and Dick Russell gave talks on different phases of radio. Gale Brewington, of the Physics department of Denver University, gave an illustrated talk on the value of "X-Ray to Scientists." "Zinc Smelting" was the subject of Mr. J. P. Varian's lecture. Mr. C. D. Utterback spoke on the "Treatment of Copper." There were also many other programs both by the faculty and student body that were equally interesting.

The purpose of the Scientific Society is to stimulate the interest of the students in the study of a subject that is absolutely essential to the modern educated person. We feel that our aim has well been carried out.

The North Hi-Y

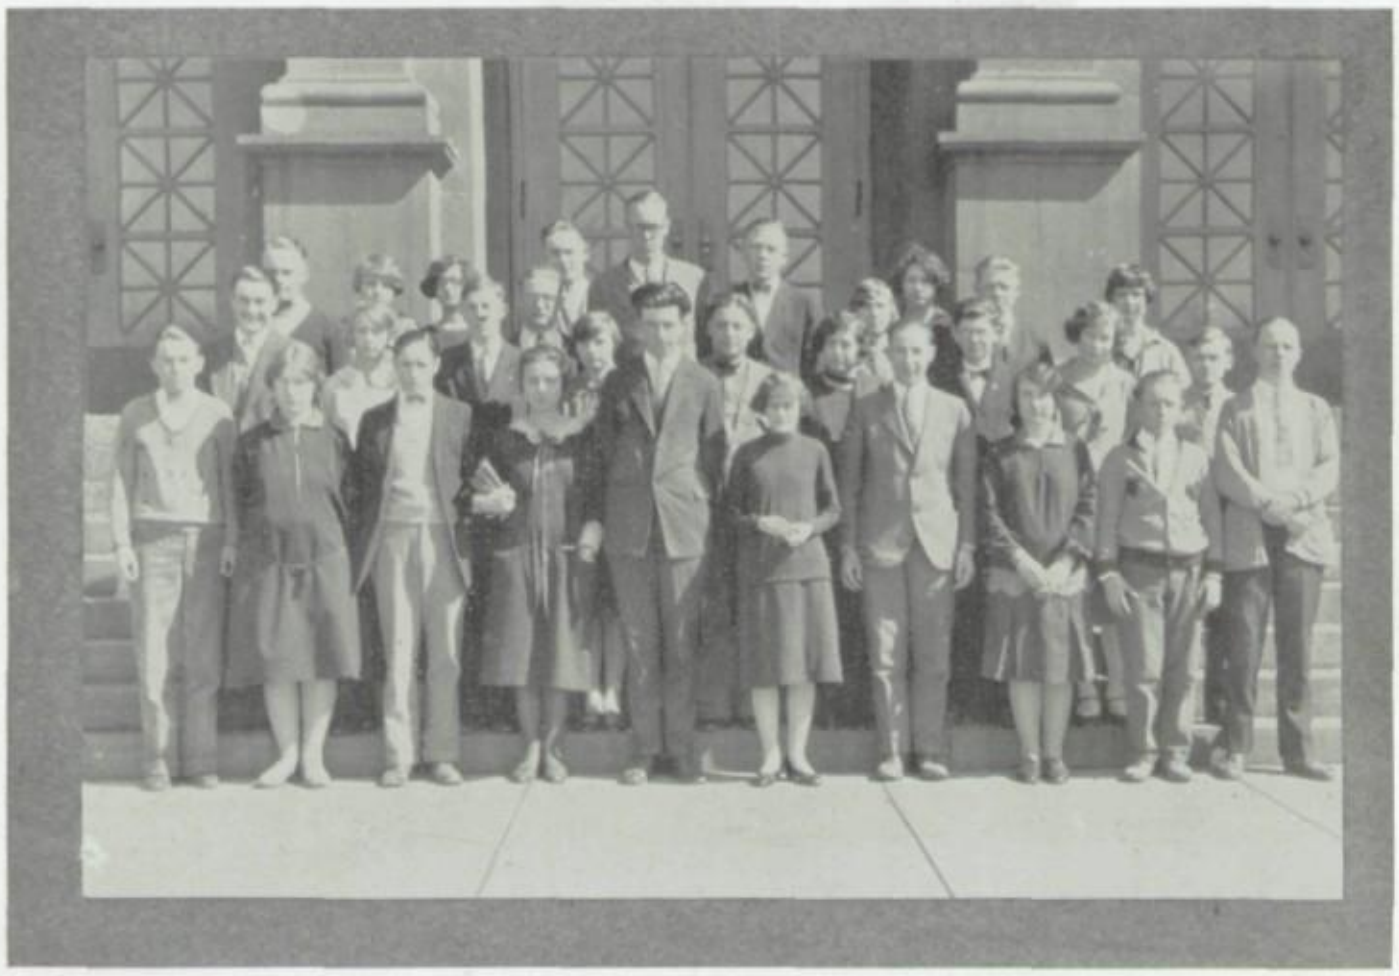
NORTH'S Hi-Y club is one of the most successful and largest in Denver. The meetings, which are held every Monday evening at various churches, have been addressed by a number of prominent speakers. A course in Bible study, followed by a standard examination for all the clubs of the state, has been taken up.

The club has twice won the Plaque offered for the highest percentage of attendance at the All-City Meetings. The Plaque will become a permanent possession of the club winning it the most times. During the past five years, North has won every cup offered for the best balanced program by any Hi-Y club of the city.

At the State Older Boys Conference held at Ft. Collins on November 27, 28, and 29, North was represented by the largest delegation present. The club also had the largest delegation present at the Conference at Colorado Springs in 1924.

The members looked forward to the spring vacation when they went to Roy Steele's cabin at Ward. Last year they spent their vacation at the Lions Club Den.

Among the activities of the club was the furnishing of magazines, books, games, etc. to the boys of the State Industrial School. World Outlook Meetings have been held at which conditions surrounding boys in other lands have been studied. The club has contributed money to the World Brotherhood movement of the Y. M. C. A.



The Mathem Society

SCOTT WOOD .....Vice-President
FRED BUSSEY .....Secretary
ELEANOR ELY .....Treasurer

SINCE the last "Viking" was issued, this club, a society especially interested in the advancement of mathematics, has been organized at North.

To Ronald Preston, president of the club, the organization owes its existence; for through his earnest efforts in consulting the proper authorities and in gathering about him the group of enthusiasts who drew up the Constitution and By-Laws and proceeded to effect an organization, the club has grown to its present status.

The members of the society were selected from a group of junior and senior students who are above the average ability along the line of mathematics and who were recommended by the different teachers of mathematics. The active membership is limited to twenty-five, but fifteen sophomores who had also shown superior ability in their respective classes were taken into the society as associate members in order to prepare them for active work in future years. In this way we hope to maintain the high standard of efficiency with which the club is being conducted.

We are proud of our organization and plan to carry out many programs that will enrich the lives of individual members and bring honor to our school.

The Commercial Club

THE year of 1926 marked the formation of this very worthwhile club for the primary purpose of arousing interest in commercial work at North.

The club was accepted by the commercial students as one of the most popular clubs of the school. So many students desired to join the club that a system of membership had to be planned. The various departments of commercial work each had charge of the program for a certain meeting and some very worthwhile and educational meetings were held.

The officers elected to head this new club were Eugene Church, president; Bernard Waldman, vice-president; Elsie Blue, secretary; Ruth Clayton, treasurer; and John Mitchell, sergeant-at-arms.

A valuable asset for the club was the securing of various leading business men of the city, who brought many interesting and helpful subjects before the club. The first of such talks was given when Mr. W. W. Bradford, of the Knight-Campbell Music Company, told of the advance of business in the past fifty years.

We might say for a general summary that this active club, thru the loyal support of the faculty, its officers, its committees, and its members, has enjoyed a very successful maiden year. The programs have been of both entertaining and educational value. It has been, and should continue to be, one of the best clubs at North. It is a club which should have been formed years ago in the interest of advancing the study of commercial work at North.

Social Hour

AT the end of this year North was still able to boast of having the best social hours in the city, and the class of 1926 certainly strengthened North's position at the head of the list.

North is the only school in the city that uses tickets, which is probably one of the reasons its socials are so entertaining.

Even though the attendance was restricted to the seniors and one of the under classes, a large crowd was always present. After each one, comments could be heard, wishing that the socials would last longer than just an hour.

The success of the socials this year was due largely to the industrious efforts of the social hour committee, whose hard work was noticeable throughout the year. They certainly should be commended for their untiring efforts.

"The Vikings," North's Jazz orchestra, led by Edward Kappe furnished the music, and in the language of a number of students they were "right there."

Fourteen socials were given. At the first a small admission fee was charged to meet the general expenses of the year. This, however, did not decrease the regular attendance, but stimulated interst.

According to the enthusiastic students who were fortunate enough to attend all the socials, each one was "bigger and better" than the one preceding, and taking all things into consideration, the socials this year have been recorded as among the most successful of the enterprises of North High School.

The North Cadets

MAINTAINING the precedent of having the largest enrollment of the Denver High Schools, the North High cadets enrolled one hundred and eight men, forming three companies. The first hour company commanded by Second Lieutenant Fred Plahte; third hour, by First Lieutenant Charles Draney; and fifth hour, by Captain George Steuart.

The past year has been a very successful one for North in the various competitions held by the Cadet corps of Denver. Last spring, in recognition of winning the annual competitive drill, North was again accorded the privilege of carrying the purple and gold banner along with the national colors in all the battalion formations. The winning company was commanded by Major Roger Crosby. In the squad competition, the North squad commanded by Sergeant Charles Draney took second place, as did North's representative for individual honors, Harold Wolfe.

For the fourth consecutive season, the rifle team, led by Captain Steuart, won the city championship cup. The following cadets fired for North; Thomas Pike, John Tripp, George Steuart, Elvin Pike, Charles Draney, Bob Arnold, Donald Burns, Floyd Hodgin, Fred Plahte, Clarence Carlson, Kenneth Sims, Rush Razee, Kenneth Nicholas, Jack Radford, and Herbert Clarke. The first seven of these placed on the all-city team.

The North cadets are striving to uphold the standards they have achieved in the past; to uphold the good name of North, along with the idea of making better citizens for their country, as well as winning honor for themselves.

Webster Oratorical Society

THE Webster Oratorical Society has spent a pleasant and profitable year under the guidance of this year's officers: William Dier, President; Abe Grupp, Vice-President; John Thurston, Secretary; Joe Lohman, Treasurer.

The first event was the 1916 Gold Medal Contest held December 4, won by Abe Grupp. Six boys took part in this contest. In the Shafroth Extemporaneous Contest, Benjamin Blumberg was judged winner of the boys contest.

Preliminaries for debating were held early in December and the following group was selected to represent the school in the Denver League debates: Ben Blumberg, Richard Boyd, Marian Buck, William Dier, Joe Lohman, Bruce Mather, and John Thurston. Bruce Mather was unable to take part in the debates because of illness, but the other members represented their school in at least two debates and one refutation speech during the season.

The Webster Society is proud of having been responsible for helping to install in the Denver Schools this year the Oxford system in place of the old competitive method. The North High School Debaters did excellent work and received favorable comment from all the schools with which they debated.

The final contest sponsored by Webster was the Freshman-Sophomore Contest held during the latter part of May. The banquet held for the members who are to be graduated in June was the one big social event of the school year and was very much enjoyed by all who attended.

Kiwanis Oratorical Contest

IN the annual Kiwanis Americanization Oratorical Prize Contest, held each year by representatives of the five Denver High Schools, under the sponsorship of the Kiwanis Club of Denver, Abe Grupp brought honor both to himself and to his school. He received the gold medal, the club's individual prize, and North became the proud possessor of the colorful picture by Robert W. Amick, entitled "The Pioneers." Last year North also emerged victor of this contest when Arthur Wuth, '25, won the medal and the Indian picture now in our front hall.

Abe spoke on the subject of "Is it desirable that the United States Give Adherence to the World Court, Subject to the Harding-Hughes-Coolidge Reservations?"

Abe won three school contests at North, one of which he afterward won in the city competition, in the other he competed but was not victorious.

1926 ORATORICAL CONTEST

The first contest of the year sponsored by the Webster Oratorical Society, was the 1916 Oratorical Contest. This contest, which is an annual affair, was made possible by the class of 1916, whose graduating gift was money to be given as a prize in the form of a gold medal to the winner.

Eight boys registered and competed in the finals which accorded the whole school, as well as the excited audience of the night of December 4, not a little speculation as to who would prove the outstanding speaker for North in '26. Abe Grupp started his ever growing string of laurels when he was adjudged winner with his well written and well delivered oration.

Little Theater State Tournament

ANOTHER student who has brought honor to North in the year of '26, and one of whom her class is justly proud, is Bernice Amsden. Bernice is president of Beta Chapter of the All Girls' League, a peppy sportswoman of the Girls' Athletic Society, as well as an active member of the Black Masque Dramatic Society. As a result of her excellent portrayal of the Indian Mother in the club's play, "Glory of the Morning," which they presented at the State Little Theater Tournament in March, she was adjudged the best actress in the non-winning group, and received a cash merchandise prize from the Dorothy Douglass Shop.

Bernice has made a most enviable record in the pursuit of dramatics while at North, which culminated in her good work at the Little Theater Tournament. We hope that Bernice will continue her dramatic work in which she has shown much talent, and be one of the successful actresses that the class of '26 will read of in '36.

Shafroth Extemporaneous

AMONG the other oratorical activities that North took a prominent part in, as both school and city representatives, was the Shafroth Extemporaneous Contest. This was held January 8 at the West Denver High School.

Senator Shafroth established his contest for both boys and girls for the purpose of promoting oratory among the young people of the city. Preliminaries were held for North in December and Benjamin Blumberg and Elizabeth Stice were chosen. Reading and familiarizing themselves with national, state, city, and school affairs was the preparation for this contest. Three topics from national, international, and school subjects were drawn and the contestants were given one hour in which to organize a speech on one of them. The speech is extemporaneous and is one of the biggest factors in learning to speak as you think.

The contest proper was one of the most enthusiastic of the season and much rivalry was shown. After an hour and a half of deliberation on the part of the judges, Ben Blumberg was called winner of the boys, and Marian Adams, of West, winner of the girls. Ben spoke on "The Colorado River Compact," and Elizabeth on the "Essentials of Good Writing for a School Paper."

The prize for each boy and girl was a handsome set of books of their choice.

GIRLS' SIGHT READING CONTEST

The Girls' Sight Reading Contest was of unusual interest this year. The contest which is of such interest to all and the one in which girls may win equal honor with boys in oratory, was made possible by the class of 1916, who left money for this purpose in the hope that it would encourage better oral reading. Their plan has succeeded, for the girls who entered this contest have been recognized as outstanding students of the school in this work.

Competition was between two classes at a time. The freshmen-sophomore classes held their contest first, then the junior-senior classes met. From these contests a winner and an honorable mention were chosen, and later these four winners competed for the grand prize, a gold pin, which Gladys Reno won for the sophomore class.

Gladys Reno, a sophomore, and the second underclassman to win this prize, won in the freshmen-sophomore contest and received an illustrated copy of Hawthorne's Tanglewood Tales; Alida Owen received honorable mention. Ruth Brown, a senior, won in the junior-senior contest, receiving as her prize, Conan Doyle's "The White Company." Katherine Schmitt, a junior, received honorable mention.

This contest is one of the five oratorical contests held in the school year, and one in which every girl has an equal chance to win. Reading is one of the pleasures of life, and if well done is appreciated to its full extent. We hope that these girls, who have the gift of good reading will continue with this work and bring enjoyment to many.

Alumni

YOU just can't keep a good Viking down, so it is no wonder that so many of our North graduates have won great fame and honor, both for themselves and for their justly proud Alma Mater.

First we are reminded of George Parkes who, after attending the school of Mines upon his graduation from North in 1901, was sent to Alaska. This last year he was appointed governor of that great possession by President Coolidge. Bernam Hoyt, 1904, has made all Denver proud of him, for this leading architect designed the Colorado National Bank, the Fourth Christian Science Church, and the Lake Junior High School, each of which adds not a little to the beauty of our city.

Colonel Ralph Ward, of the class of '04, plotted the entire map of the Chateau Thierry charge, and also holds high honors in the United States Army. Gregor McPherson, '14, has a government commercial position at Washington, D. C.; and Edgar Woolard, a '16 grad, is a prominent Washington author and meteorologist.

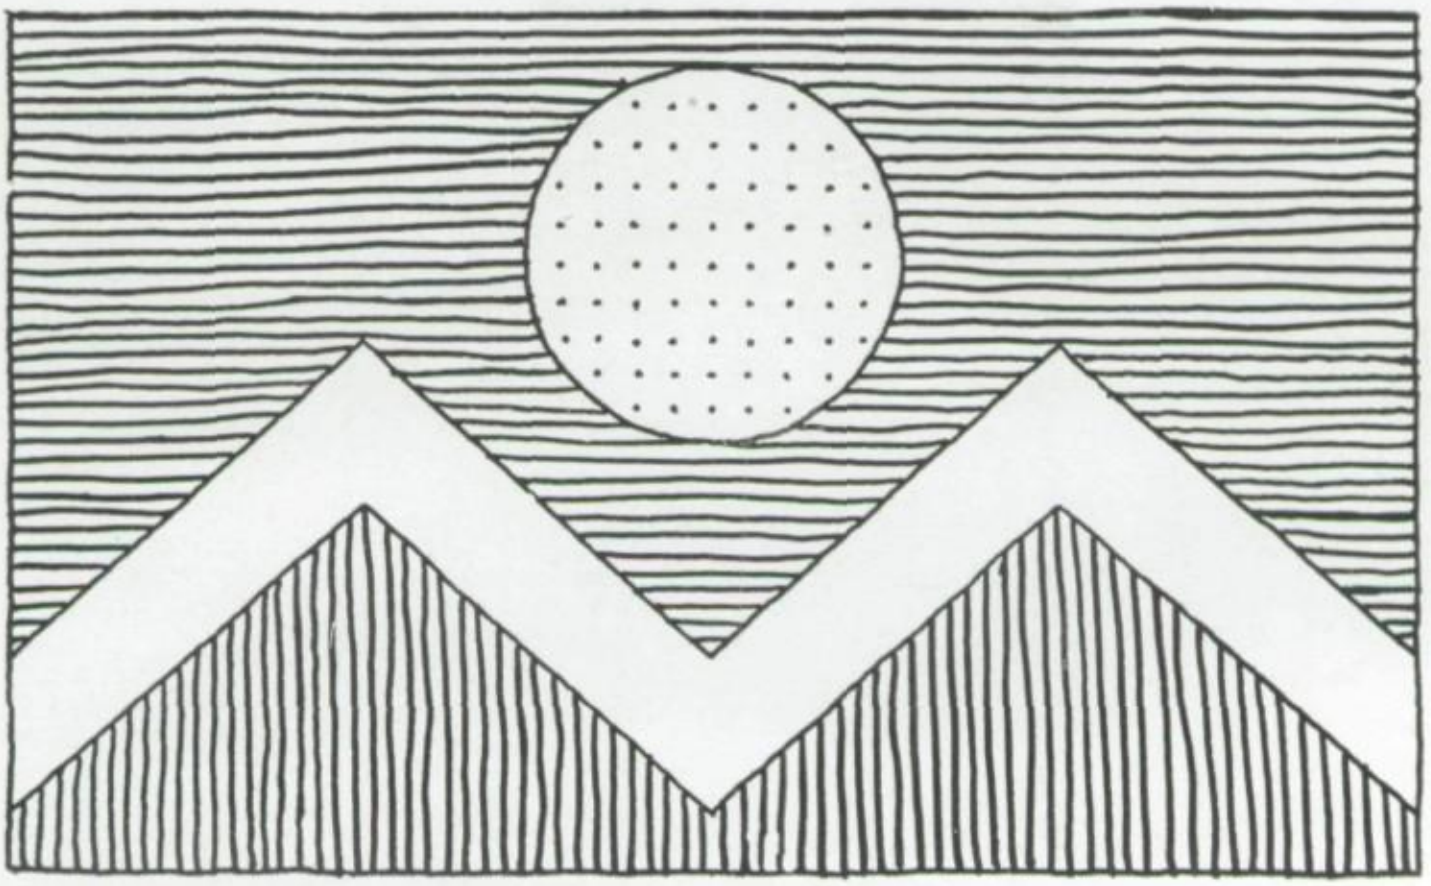
Some of our more recent alumni also are doing good work: the Naval Academy at Annapolis claims several of our grads who are making fine records. Samuel Crittenden, '22, is second in his class of naval architecture and fourth in his math class of six hundred students. Jack Sylvester, '20, won the physics prize, one of the leading prizes of the institution and a very high honor, we are told. Harry Burris, also of the '20 class, is making an enviable record there too.

Robert Palmer, '21, who is now attending Colorado University at Boulder, was elected president of the Rocky Mountain College Yearbook Association. Gordon Clark, '23, is the assistant editor of the Rocky Mountain Collegian, published by the State Agricultural College at Fort Collins where he is enrolled.

Even those who graduated last year have already demonstrated their ability to carry on their records made here. At D. U., Fred Hile, our last year's poet and essayist laureate, was among a very few admitted to the Quill Club. Arthur Wuth, our illustrious orator of two-state fame, won the Freshman-Sophomore Oratorical Contest. Gwendolyn Olinger, the president of the A. G. L. last year, was elected secretary of the Freshman Class. At Colorado College James Llorens is an active member of the debating team and a good news rustler for the C. C. Tiger.

The stage claims two of the most talented members of the "ne plus ultra" (except ours) class of 1925, for Edith Weber is dancing her way to fame in New York city; and Ray Kortz, or Raymond Keane as he is now known, is making a name for himself at Hollywood as a silver screen star. We should also note that Harold Barlow, '11, is the successful manager of the Little Theaters in New York city.

These are only a few of the many hundreds who have gone forth from our good old North High School. Many more that we cannot for lack of room mention here are equally illustrious, and others are quietly doing their share in the world's work. And now nearly four hundred more have gone to swell that great number. How many of us, I wonder, will North be proud to say graduated in 1926?



The Municipal Flag

WHAT is more symbolic, more thrilling, more patriotic than a Flag? We feel proud that we knew in our high school days the girl who designed the official flag of the City and County of Denver!

Out of one hundred and fifty entries in the Municipal Flag Contest, the Denver Art Commission chose Margaret Overbeck's design for its artistic proportion, simplicity, and symbolism. It shows a knowledge of primitive art and heraldry, besides symbolizing Denver's famous characteristics of cleanliness, loyalty, commercially centralized position and past history.

Although the prize was not the biggest thing Margaret received as her reward, we feel that it surely deserves mention, especially when it is one hundred dollars!

The flag, which appears above, is described in the following way: the blue field stands for the blue sky and loyalty of citizens; the white zigzag stripe represents the snow capped mountains and the cleanness of our city; the yellow circle, the golden Colorado sun and the gold for which the pioneers were searching; the position of the circle in a blue field indicates Denver as the commercial center of the West; and red, the red soil from which the Spaniards named our state Colorado.

From the plan of the municipal flag, Margaret drew our own North High flag, substituting the Viking ship for the yellow circle.

The All Girls' League

LONG, long ago, there lived in Asia Minor a nation of war-like women called Amazons who fought their battles without the aid of man. Although this nation has long since disappeared, yet its spirit has lived and may be seen even today.

The All Girls' League instills into each member this spirit to do and dare. The girls are banded together to fight through all difficulties, to fight for the right, but instead of carrying spears to help them in this cause they carry lighted torches to inspire them to raise high the standards of the All Girls' League.

The girls of North have helped carry on that glorious spirit through the year of 1926, and they have done their duty faithfully. At the beautiful and impressive installation ceremony, which was the beginning of activities for the year, the president lighted her torch at the shrine of that undying Spirit of North. The president of each chapter lighted her torch and pledged herself to stand for: Friendship, the glorification of life; honor, the basis of character; faith, the basis of society; health, purpose, and self-control, the basis of success and leadership.

Again, the Spirit of the North appeared in the beautiful Christmas play, "The Gift of Gifts," sponsored by Delta, which depicted the real meaning of Christmas.

In March, vocational talks were given by six prominent people, each representing his particular vocation. These talks included the subjects of home-making, salesmanship, advertising, journalism, the stage, and art.

Gamma Chapter sponsored a fashion show which was a lovely pageant and offered helpful suggestions for class day and graduation dresses.

Among the activities of the year may be mentioned the question boxes which each chapter had for the benefit of the new girls; the furnishing of a rest room in the shops; a ribbon sale conducted by Alpha Chapter; the foot-ball dance sponsored by Beta in honor of the foot-ball boys; the dressing of fifty dolls for Chinese girls by Epsilon; a theater party at the Egyptian Theater; Hallowe'en parties and social service work by all chapters at Thanksgiving and Christmas.

In the Spring the Mother and Daughter Teas were given to carry out one of the purposes of the League, the bringing of Mothers and Daughters closer together.

The year ended with the senior farewell, making tighter the bonds of friendship and increasing the love and loyalty of each girl for North.

The presidents installed in their chapters were:

FRANCES WOLFE ..... All Girls' League
MARIAN BUCK ..... Alpha
BERNICE AMSDEN ..... Beta
HELEN INGRAM ..... Delta
MARGARET GIVENS ..... Gamma
MILDRED NAHRING ..... Epsilon

The North Star

The Viking

THIS year's greatest achievement of the North Star was the weekly publication. This was the first and only weekly high school paper to be published in Denver and gave to the North Star another distinction as well as that of being the largest paper in the city high schools. The staff felt just pride in this achievement and put forth its best efforts that the North Star might be interesting, newsy, and full of life.

Campaigns sponsored by the paper met with unusual success. Among these were attempts to establish more courtesy at the athletic games, better attendance at school contests, and more orderly conduct about the building.

The keynote to the success of the North Star was co-operation and harmony among the members of the staff. Each editor and reporter seemed willing to lend a helping hand to another. Several times during the year circumstances made it impossible for various heads of departments to carry on their work. Each time one or several others stepped into the place and did the extra work steadily and without complaint.

Due credit and thanks should be given to those who could not hold editorships on the paper but who willingly helped when asked. Among these were Helen Briggs, Margaret Overbeck, Edwina Nichols, and Katherine Putnam.

The business staff of the North Star handled the finances of the paper admirably and because of their splendid co-operation were indispensable.

FATHER & SON

A woodpecker lit on a Freshman's head, and settled down to drill,
He bored away for half a day, and finally broke his bill.

Father: "Daughter, why are you always behind in your studies?"
Ruth C.: "So I may pursue them, father dear."

Gomer James: "Roy, what makes your hair so red?"
Roy Steele: "Well, you see it's so wiry that every time I wash it, it rusts."

Dorthea B.: "Where does Frank go every morning, so early?"
Harvey O.: "Down to the Post Office to fill his fountain pen."

Dick: "What do you think about my Senior Oration?"
Alma: "I've heard worse."
Dick: "Where?"
Alma: "Oh, I dunno."

Ray Finch: "My girl said that this last poem of mine caused her heart to miss a beat."

North Star Ed.: "We can't use it then. We can't print anything that will interfere with our circulation."

Paul A.: "Have you told your girl, you couldn't take her to the Senior Prom yet?"

Don B.: "I thought I'd wait and surprise her."

Rachel F.: (in cooking class) "How many dates are needed?"
Elsie B.: "Seven a week."

Philip Salter is a good electrician. He says there are two natural magnets in this world: Blonds and Brunettes.

A timid little Freshie,
To the Annual Box did come.
Dropped his penny in it, and waited for the gum.

Freeman: "I heard a good joke for the Annual.
Eleanor: Good. What is it?"
Freeman: "I forgot it."

Glen: "Whenever I want to know anything, I look it up in the library."
Dorothea: "Doesn't Miss Pegan get tired of seeing you there, all the time?"

Arthur: "Remember when we first met in the revolving door at the library?"
Lillian: "But that wasn't the first time we met."
Arthur: "Well that was where we started going around together."

Mr. Wheatley: "Henry, wake up that boy sitting next to you."
Henry: "Aw, wake him up yourself, you put him to sleep."

Miss Ingersoll: "When did Virgil die?"
Elizabeth: "51 A. B."
Miss Ingersoll: "A. B.? Don't you mean B. C.?"
Elizabeth: "No mam. 51 A. B. Fifty-one years after birth."

Miss N.: "What do you know about the age of Elizabeth?"
Freeman: (dreamily) "Eighteen next month."

Alice (in chem.) "Is ice cream a solution?"
George: "No, it's a refreshment."

Received by Miss Harmison, attendance secretary.
"Dear Miss Harmison,

Please excuse Marjorie's absence as she fell in the mud. By doing the same you will greatly oblige her mother."

Mr. Tweig: "Oxygen is essential to the existence of all animals; there could be no life without it, and it was discovered only one century ago."
Eleanor: "How did people live before it was discovered?"

Marjorie: "What is your ideal man?"
Hazel: "One who is clever enough to make money and yet is foolish enough to spend it."

George: "Yes sir. Hash."

Mr. H. (in 2J): "Hey! What's your name back there?"
Carl L. (just waking up in time to know he was being addressed): "I don't know, sir. I didn't have a chance to study last night."

Time Honored Customs

AMONG the time-honored customs that the Ancient Romans followed when their civilization was at its height, was that of using their walls for memoranda. From excavations we have learned that they stuck up posters to advertise a popular candidate, announcements of coming gladiatorial shows or a circus, and personal "ads." But most interesting of all their wall decorations were the scribbled sentiments found there—either threats and insults thus publicly aimed at an enemy, or friendly greetings and holiday bywords, or a delightful correspondence between two lovers, or the sage words of a philosopher, or verses from school books that had been vividly impressed on the scholars in one way or other.

It suddenly occurred to some of us to wonder what the walls of our little city here at North would look like if we had free reign to scribble or post stuff and nonsense as we pleased. May we imagine some of the following choice bits?

For the election notices can't you picture such picturesque boosts as these: "Vote for Donald Burns for president—wonderful programs at Peppy Senior Lit meetings guaranteed;" or "Benny Martin for mayor—he's a good kind, signed E. Smith;" or for the Latin consuls such appropriate words, "Daniel and Grace, the most fun for your money, pro bono publico;" or even this, "The best yet—Dick Richards for president—come on you juniors." Do you think it would improve matters?

Those ads to volunteer service might read something like this: "Freda Brown will tutor any and all variations of mute bells;" or, "Elizabeth Stice will receive contributions to the North Star from 8:00 A. M. to 6:00 P. M., eight days a week;" or a flashing notice to the effect that Jessie June Getty will give free instruction on how to catch big game in a locker; or that Paul Ambrose (mebbe) will tell his admiring friends how to acquire a wave like nature's own; or that Eugene Church will divulge some of his secrets on successful salesmanship; or that "Jerry" Boyd will instruct all ambitious freshmen how to succeed to her famous title as "social hour fiend."

Coming events, we may be sure, would receive lots of free advertising, but we should hope not to the lessening of those cunning caricatures that usually blossom forth just before an anticipated production. But it wouldn't be bad, would it, (or wouldn't it) if we had some permanent record (besides that on the back of the stage) of such events as those glorious ones just over. "Come and see the Romantic Age—Dorothy and Glen at their best." (Do you remember the board drawings that preceded it—you couldn't tell whether it represented a jack-in-the-box or a lovely, although pink, garden wall.) Or again the inscription "Buy a Viking—Bigger and better 'n ever—ne plus ultra" might have helped a little. Do you suppose the Senior Lit play would have drawn as large a crowd if it had had such flamboyant posters on the wall—"Extra, extra—Leavitt scorns the fair Frances—come and see the twins get separated." Of course the posters and boards drawings were excellent for all these productions, but you see they are not permanent.

Now for those personal notices and thrusts: "Please note—Rachel and I are not twins (thank goodness), Ray Finch." "Dear Arthur—I have went home in your car. Do you care?" and below, "Dear Freeman—What good vould it do if I did care? Don't forget to bring my camera to Assembly for me. Ar.

Can you not delight in such sweet and sticky expressions of tender emotion as these: "Dear Kelly—Oh how, my heart, doth pine, for thee, while the flow, ers bloom, so bew, tifullee, and the birds, do sing, in the ap, ple tree! please do, come back, to yer L. B. G! Again, "Dear Laura, Let us soon hie us away from this weary world; I will wait for you at the usual trysting place, your faithful cavalier, Jawn," and this bit of philosophy, "Oh how hungry I get during fourth hour."
